

Announcement: EGOLF training courses at MPA NRW

On behalf of the European Group of Organisations for Fire Testing, Inspection and Certification (EGOLF), MPA NRW is offering training courses for the European harmonized Reaction to Fire-test procedures. The employees of the MPA NRW have received training to become EGOLF Primary Trainers. Therefore the MPA NRW is authorized to carry out courses for the following test procedures.

- EN ISO 1182
- EN ISO 1716
- EN ISO 11925-2
- EN ISO 9239-1
- EN 13823

The implementation of the European test procedures for the reaction to fire behaviour of building products has initiated EGOLF to offer especially developed training courses for these procedures to establish a basis for a uniform way of proceeding regarding the performance of the tests and the assessment of the test results. These training courses also provide an exclusive opportunity for interested industrial laboratories to get to know these basics. Participants of these training courses will be acknowledged as an EGOLF trained expert.

The training courses, which MPA NRW, among others, helped to develop, have a theory and a practical part. In the theory part, the test procedures based on the testing standard are described in a Powerpoint presentation and the special features are explained in detail. Furthermore, the statements of the standard which may not be clear are clarified. In the practical part of the course, the information given in the theory part is demonstrated and discussed. This includes the adjustment and calibration of the test equipment, the performance of a test (tests using different types of materials are shown) as well as the evaluation of a test.
